

Displaying your preferred song library

The app can access two types of song libraries called 'Groups' and 'Folders'.

- Groups – this type of library contains our shared (all@c bude) music. It is stored centrally, updated by our band leaders and downloaded to our tablets, both when you first sign up for a group's library and whenever updates are made.
- Folders – this type of library holds your personal libraries, which are created by you and stored on your tablet. Most will choose not to use this type of library, but all may!

You choose between the Groups library and the Folders library by clicking on the tabs at the top of the menu panel (see  below). These tabs aren't always visible, so you may have to take a few steps to reveal them:

- If you are currently displaying music and the menu contents are hidden, first press the three-bar menu icon on the left of the music header display:

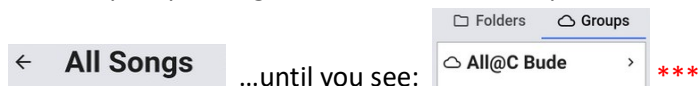

- Else if you are in the Settings Menu, press the left arrow at the left of the header bar:

- Now press the Songs Icon at bottom of menu/song list display:

- Now keep on pressing the left arrow at the top of the menu/song list:

- Press 'Groups' for the shared all@c library or 'Folders' to see your local library.
- A key final step is to make SongbookPro display the detailed music list for your choice. Either press All@c Bude (if you have chosen 'Groups') or 'All Songs' (if you have chosen 'Folders') to display your song/set choice.
